Description

Horses in Training is an institution in racing – an indispensable tool for every racing enthusiast. Written in an easy-to-follow style, it is an encyclopaedia of invaluable information on the horses each trainer has in their care, with almost 20,000 horses and 595 trainers. The book lists alphabetically the British, Irish and French trainers, their horses, the owner and breeder of every horse, foaling dates of two-year-olds and the trainer's address and phone numbers. Fully indexed, it includes more than 200 pages of key statistics, covering everything from big-race winners to trainer tables, fixtures and racecourse information. The book is expertly edited by Graham Dench, a Racing Post senior reporter and former form book editor.
