Description

(Still) Ain't Got a Barrel of Money charts Sheffield United's astonishing rise from the brink of oblivion, after dropping to the Fourth Division for the first (and only) time in its history, to competing in the inaugural Premier League season. Lincolnshire businessman Reg Brealey saved United from the abyss and almost certainly going out of business. He and young manager Ian Porterfield started the long ascent back to the top flight. For many Blades fans, the victorious Fourth Division campaign was the best season in living memory, scoring a bagful of goals in front of crowds of over 22,000. Porterfield took United straight back up, fired by the goals of Keith Edwards and Bob Hatton, assisted by the brilliance of Colin Morris. His side were then promoted to the Second Division. Later, Dave Bassett set about reshaping the team, with the likes of Brian Deane and Tony Agana bringing further promotion for United and a place in the very first Premier League season.
